This matter was decided at a meeting of the territorial comthe principle cities in the territory representing the commercial clubs and city asking for the convention. It took seven ballots to decide the matter with Perry, By the making of combinations on the seventh ballot, the good natured contest was ended by Enid securing the necessary number of votes. Without doubt the meeting today was one of the most important meeting that the territorial committee has had. Every county in Okla-homa including the Indian reservations was represented, and every person was enthusiastic for the laying of plans for Republican success this fall.
